discover nature's essence

A healthy environment and high quality wood lies at the heart of our activities as a flooring manufacturer.

Environmental concern is one of the key targets of Ipowood.

There is a worldwide trend towards darker species being used as parquet flooring. As an environmentally friendly alternative the Kentucky range contains many items based on thermo-treated white Oak. The white Oak - Quercus alba - grows in huge quantities in forests of the US, Europe and Manchuria. There is no doubt about sustainable forest management concerning Oak.

Our suppliers of lacquers and oils are well established European companies with production facilities all over the world. We only use water-based lacquers and natural oils which do not contain solvents.

The wood that we use has been felled in areas that are subject to the strictest controls, and it is an absolute requirement that it comes from areas which are managed according to sustainable forestry policies.

Through technical innovations Ipowood is looking for efficient solutions which are friendly to nature.

about kentucky

kentucky expertise

Involving and functional, this is a contemporary collection.

From the most classic to the most modern, this collection reflects the latest trends in architecture and design, combining tones and textures perfectly.

Inspired by the past and based on Oak with different finishes, the Kentucky Collection has unique characteristics.

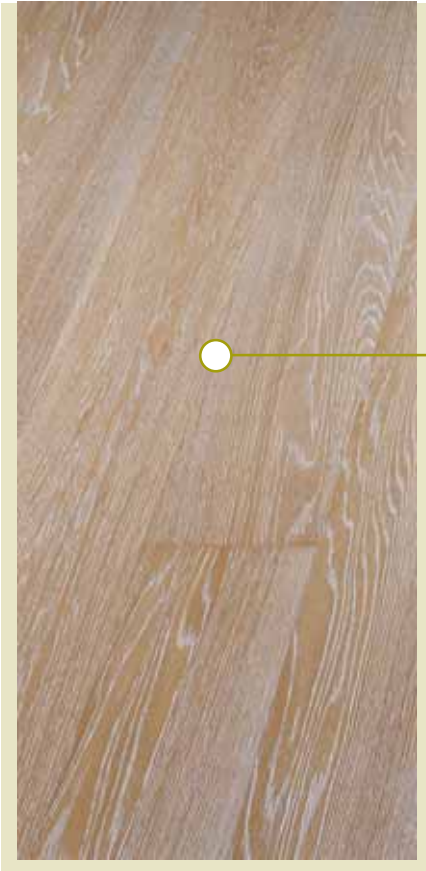

These finishes give the wood a tone that is similar to that of very expensive, rare and tropical wood such as American Walnut, African Wenge, Teak or Iroko.

A range of different models and finishes manufactured in 3-layer (3 Ply) and 1,830x189x15mm boards are available in a no-glue fitting system, "Ipoloc", which is extremely easy to install.

In addition to this, the bevelling of the edges enhances the beauty of the panels.

Inspire yourself on this new collection and re-create your area...
